The program provides practical insights into how AI is transforming exchange operations, trading, market infrastructure, data analytics, risk management, and decision-making. Through global perspectives and case-based discussions, participants will examine how AI can be responsibly adopted to drive innovation, efficiency, resilience, and long-term market competitiveness.

Target Competencies

- AI and Digital Transformation Leadership
- Strategic Decision-Making in Capital Markets
- Data-Driven Decision-Making and Analytics
- Innovation and Market Infrastructure Development
- Risk Management and Responsible AI Governance
- Regulatory and Global Market Perspective
- Strategic Planning and Institutional Transformation

Target Audience

- C-suite executives from GCC stock exchanges and capital market institutions
- Leaders responsible for strategy, operations, technology, data, risk, market development, and innovation within financial market infrastructure.
- Decision-makers leading or influencing AI adoption, digital transformation, and market infrastructure development.

Program objective

- Equip C-suite executives with strategic and practical insights into how AI is transforming capital market infrastructure, including trading, clearing, settlement, surveillance, and exchange operations.
- Strengthen executive decision-making capabilities by exploring how advanced data analytics, machine learning, and AI-enabled tools can enhance market efficiency, risk management, and institutional performance.
- Enable leaders to assess AI opportunities and risks by understanding key considerations related to governance, ethics, regulation, cybersecurity, and responsible AI adoption in capital markets.
- Foster collaboration and knowledge exchange among GCC and global financial market leaders to share perspectives, challenges, and opportunities in shaping the future of AI integration across the capital market ecosystem.
- Provide exposure to global best practices and real-world case studies from leading exchanges and financial institutions, with a focus on AI governance, market innovation, and future-ready exchange models
